AliveTek and The Harbor Institute Partner to Create Online Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Training for College Students

Clearwater, FL, May 27, 2020 — AliveTek, Inc, a leader in e-learning development, and The Harbor Institute, a premier educational consulting firm that specializes in serving culturally-based audiences, are launching a one-hour e-learning course entitled Brave & Bold Dialogues™: Diversity, Equity & Inclusion – College Edition. The course will be available Fall 2020 through the Prevent.Zone by AliveTek e-learning platform.

Brave & Bold Dialogues™: Diversity, Equity & Inclusion – College Edition is a basic 101 level course that introduces concepts of diversity, equity and inclusion from a unique perspective. The e-learning course covers a broad range of issues as it relates to social and personal identities such as race and ethnicity, socio-economic status, gender, sexual orientation and religion. It empowers students from all backgrounds with an opportunity to gain a heightened awareness and increased understanding on how to have difficult yet constructive conversations related to these topics. “We hope our course will serve as a tool to empower students with confidence and knowledge to initiate and navigate brave and bold dialogues with their families, friends, professors and peers. In these uncertain times we must continue to produce resources that reach our students.”, said Rasheed Ali Cromwell, JD, President of The Harbor Institute. “One of our primary goals with our e-learning course is to provide a quality resource that is easily accessible to students during these times and in the future. Constructive conversations are an important step towards positive change.” Accordingly, the course not only assists students in their collegiate experience but prepares them for life post-graduation. Learning how to become more inclusive and embrace diversity, not only creates a more marketable candidate for the job market and other post graduate educational opportunities, it also empowers students with transferable skill sets to empower their communities. Research shows that a diverse and inclusive workforce can help increase a business’ bottom line, drive innovation, and attract more talent and create more opportunities for growth.

“We’re proud to be partnering with The Harbor Institute in this important area” added Sandy Mills-Alford, President and CEO of AliveTek, Inc. “Our hope is that this first course will help college students everywhere to grow their confidence, so they can embark upon ‘brave and bold dialogues.’ The learning experience is designed with interactive scenarios that illustrate how each of us can achieve our best, societal self.”
